Col. William J. Perry of the 116th Virginia Infantry, and Col. Thomas E. Worthen of the 111th Virginia and District of Columbia Artillery, have been relieved and succeeded temporarily by Brown and James respectively. It is considered likely that the New Jersey officers will be raised to Colonels and assigned permanently to these regiregiments. Both New Jersey Lieutenant-Colonels have been raised to this grade since coming South, having been Majors in the old State Guard.

Jersey units under instructions from the War Department indicate a number of enlisted men from that State will not see service abroad with the division. The men are being grouped in two divisions, one composed of those who have passed the foreign service physical tests and the other those who have been marked for domestic service.

The latter class will be assigned to casual companies to do guari duty in the United States or service in domestic labor organizations. This policy of retaining men in the service who have been physically disqualified for overseas duty is something new here, and it will greatly decrease the number of discharges.
